Capturing The Australian Image – Past, Present and Future

Takes us on a journey from the Melbourne Cup of 1896 – our first moving pictures – to the wonders of a Tasmanian Rain Forest in the latest superb HD Digital Cinematography - and the journey between.

Celebrating our Image Makers

For well over a Century our photographers and filmmakers have been capturing a vast wealth of images of our country and its people. Like our sports men and women, these image makers have performed brilliantly on the world stage – and continue to do so. Our best feature films and documentaries – and even our TV commercials are second to none. Then – in capturing our Australian Image, they have captured our unique Australian spirit – and that's what this show is all about.

As recorders of our history we can never tell the whole story, the best we can do is to capture fragments of history that hopefully reveal the highlights of the story – a fragment of living history preserved in a little capsule. What value lies in that? Let me show you!

This programme consists of these little capsules that span a Century of our cinema history. It will illustrate the huge potential of my Australian Image Project – preserving the past for the future.

Now! It's your turn to make Capsules of Living History. Learn to do it well with an EVD "Action!" Kit – it's simple, Let me show you!
